Paintings, brush strokes and of course, concepts and interpretations? Does it give you excitement, curiosity, or a sudden drum-like sounds coming from your heart? Whatever the emotions you might feel, it has a reflection on how you appreciate an art, a painting or medium that was used, the brush strokes and how you interpreted the masterpiece. It will somehow bring you to a dimension that no one has ever been to, that dimension can only be seen not by naked eyes, but with your creativity and imagination. There will be an urge to know how was it created? How was it painted? What medium was used? And who did it?

When you were at your younger age, have you noticed that there's always a subject called Art? Have you asked yourself why or how it will help you to enhance your skills that you can use in the future? Probably, at your age, you didn't ask yourself. WHY? Because these questions are not yet existing on your mind, only the existence of happiness since you are playing paints, colors, brushes and most of all, happiness on showing how creative you are in terms of creating a masterpiece. As we grow older, those color pencils, watercolors, crayons, pencils and papers will turn to paint brushes, acrylic paints, oil-based watercolors, charcoal pencils and canvases. In this time of your life, your brain is more improved and enhanced with the knowledge that you've learned in the past few years of your life. And this is also the perfect time for you to understand arts and paintings. You will start to appreciate other people's masterpieces, get curious on how were they able to come up with that painting and will have the eagerness to create your own. Making your own masterpiece is not as easy as what we usually do when we were younger. This time, it will be more detailed. You will need to study a certain medium that you can use in order for you to express yourself well and work on your own painting creatively.
